

Dialog Exercise

Directions:

Write a dialog between you and your antagonist. Your antagonist can be a spouse, parent, child, yourself, co-worker, deceased or alive.

1. The dialog is a written conversation between you and your antagonist.
  - a. It can be a conversation from the past
  - b. It can be a recent conversation.
  - c. It can be a conversation that you need to have in the future.
2. The dialogs do not have to be an accurate conversation.
3. It's not about grammar; it's about the communication.
4. How long should it be?
  - a. As long as it needs to be.
5. Send the dialog to me as a word document email attachment.
  - a. Optional: Word allows you to password protect under the "save as" option
  - b. Select the "Tools" dropdown triangle next to the "Save" button
  - c. Select the "General Option"
  - d. Use my last name as the password
6. I'll return your dialog to you with my comments and feedback.

Example

Me: Do you have a minute? I got something I've been meaning to ask you about.

Other: Well, make it fast. I'm kind of busy.

Me: Last week, you said something that got me thinking.

Other: Here we go again. I don't have time for this!
